Go to Section 6

University or college staff should check the student's answers to Section 4 before completing, signing and stamping this section.

If the student's university or college is in England or Northern Ireland, please complete the following information.

- the student intends to complete the following number of credits, credit points, modules or any other unit of measure by studying on a part-time (PT) basis in academic year 2009/10.
- the following number of credits, credit points, modules or any other unit of measure would comprise the equivalent full-time (FT) course within one academic year.

Number of PT units

Unit of measure
(delete as applicable)

credits/credit
points/modules/other

Number of FT units

Unit of measure
(delete as applicable)

credits/credit
points/modules/other

Intensity of study is calculated by taking the number of part-time units (identified above) that the student intends to study in academic year 2009/10 and dividing it by the number of units (identified above) that the student would complete in one academic year if the course were studied on a full-time basis. The result is then expressed as a percentage.

- the intensity of study for this course is

$$\frac{\text{PT units } \boxed{}}{\text{FT units } \boxed{}} \times 100 = \boxed{} \%$$

If the student's university or college is in Wales, please complete the following information.

- the student is expected to complete this part-time (PT) course in years.
- the equivalent full-time (FT) course would last years.

Intensity of study is calculated by dividing the number of years for FT by the number of years for PT and multiplying this by 100. Therefore:

- the intensity of study for this course is

$$\frac{\text{FT } \boxed{}}{\text{PT } \boxed{}} \times 100 = \boxed{} \%$$
