bursary consent statements

Your decision about consent will not affect your entitlement to statutory support.

Students

Your university or college may be offering financial awards such as bursaries or scholarships to its students. To help them administer these awards (i.e. to determine your eligibility and entitlement to, and if relevant pay you, a bursary or scholarship – “bursary administration purposes”) they may ask the Secretary of State, if your place of study is in England, or the National Assembly for Wales, if your place of study is in Wales, or the Department for Employment and Learning, if your place of study is in Northern Ireland or the Student Loans Company for access to information you provide in connection with your application for student finance (whether on this form or at a later date). They may also ask for information related to your eligibility for student finance, the particular grants or loans that you qualify for, the calculation of the amount of financial support payable to you or the amount of financial support payable to you.

Your information can only be shared with your consent. Agreeing to provide your university or college with access to your information may avoid them needing to ask you for the same information again and may help you get any bursary and/or scholarships that you may be entitled to more quickly and efficiently.

Please indicate below if you consent to your information being shared with your university or college specifically for bursary administration purposes.
