Planned roadworks on England's major roads
December 2010 to February 2011

Whether you are heading off to visit friends and relatives or travelling on business this winter, just a few minutes planning before you set off can take the stress out of the journey.

During the winter it is always a good idea to plan your route - checking weather and traffic conditions before setting off and during the journey. Make sure you are well-prepared by packing an emergency kit. You may even consider changing your travel plans. For more information about what to pack in your emergency kit, and travelling in severe weather please visit www.highways.gov.uk/winter. Make time for safe travel this winter.

This guide can help warn you of any major essential roadworks, although the volume of traffic and unplanned accidents and incidents are more likely to be the cause of any delays. To help you avoid these we have a range of live traffic services including the website www.highways.gov.uk/traffic, Traffic Radio and iPhone app.

We'll also keep you updated with the traffic situation during your journey using variable message signs on the motorways and via information screens when you stop for a break at the services.

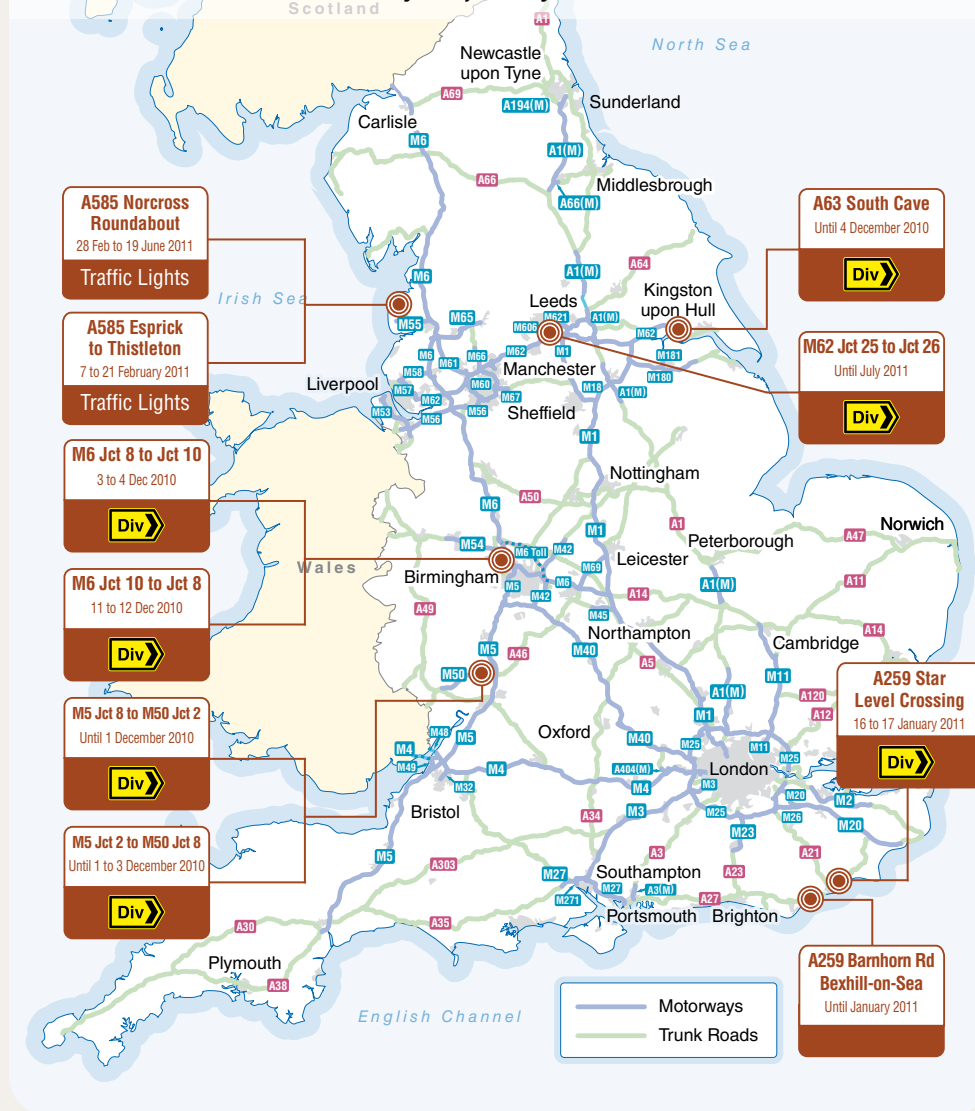

To use this guide to roadworks in England simply go to the maps or tables on the following pages and locate the information that will affect your journey. To make your search easier the guide is divided into North and South. As a shortcut simply click North or South on the map above.

i To get a more detailed view of any of the information on the map pages you can use the Adobe Reader Marquee Zoom tool  to drag a rectangle around a portion of the page that you want to fill the viewing area. See the map pages for more detailed instructions.

Please allow more time for your journey when driving through roadworks.

The Highways Agency tries to limit roadworks on roads that will be very busy at peak holiday times. Even so, we suggest that you plan ahead if you need to catch trains, flights or ships. You can get up-to-date traffic information from www.highways.gov.uk
